Nov. 18 Will Give You Chance
To Aid Home For Aged Women

Tuesday, Nov. 18 is the date of "Donation Day" at the Home for Aged Women. Deeds of Kindness live long in Memory's chalice. Every year at the Thanksgiving season, the directors invite the citizens of Rockland and vicinity to come with offerings to the Home for Aged Women, and bless them by your presence and your gifts and partake of a delightful hour, with tea served by these diligent and faithful members of the board.

It is the one event of close contacts that all the members of this household of comfort and mercy for the public and who are thus able to spend the last of their declining years in the gentle home care which is given here by the citizens of this section who love their neighbors as themselves. If everyone would send a little, the lot would keep our larder well filled. One dollar per year makes you a member of this organization.

This Home has proved to be one of Rockland's most precious institutions.

MONTGOMERY WILL FILED

Camden Man Left Large Bequests—$25,000
To Colby College

The will of the late Job H. Montgomery of Camden was filed in Knox County Probate Court Monday afternoon with Harold J. Wilson of Camden named as executor without bond. The estate was estimated at $210,000 and may be doubled.

The will contained ten bequests, the largest stated amount being a gift to Colby College of $25,000, to be used for prize speaking and preliminary of speaking and language study. He stated in the bequest, "I do not favor removal of Colby College."

The first bequest was to a nephew, John H. Montgomery, the Montgomery homestead in the town of Penobscot.

The second was to Harold J. Wilson of Camden, and gave all of his shares of the capital stock of the Dr. D. P. Ordway Plaster Company and all his interest in the land and buildings of the company on Tannery Lane in Camden.

Alexander R. Gilmor of Camden was bequeathed the law library, office furniture and equipment and the brick block at 15 Elm street in Camden in which the law office is located with the right for Frank Morrow to occupy the ground floor for his business, he to pay his share of heat, taxes, repairs and water as long as he occupied it.

To Lou Perkins and her daughter, Ruth Perkins, his niece, the sum of $10,000 to be allotted them "from securities I may hold at par value."

To Mary Louise Heath, a cousin, $10,000 to be allotted out of securities at par value.

To nieces, Margaret and Etta Lane, $1000 each.

To Ruth Sargent McLean, a cousin, the Henry Knight homestead at 82 Elm street in Camden, together with its contents.

To Clara S. Tash of Portland, if she be living at the time of my death, in memory of early companionship and continued affection, the sum of $1000.

The rest, residue and remainder of the estate to Harold J. Wilson and Alexander R. Gilmor, in trust for my relatives on the Montgomery side who may need assistance and relief and the deserving poor of the town of Camden in such manner as my trustees may deem necessary.

Witnesses to the will were Harold S. Davis, Helen Marie Dougherty and Everett R. Grieve.

At the latest meeting of the Band Mothers' Club, it was voted to buy two uniforms and to hold a card party Nov. 27 at the High School.

THREE DAYLIGHT ROBBERIES

Recent Thefts In Rockland Explained By Portland Youth's Confession

—By Staff Photographer.

Harry Joseph Hachey of Portland is shown above with Deputy Marshal Almon P. Richardson and Patrolman Roland Sukeforth, shortly after he was returned to Rockland.

Harry J. Hachey of Portland was before Municipal Court this morning on three counts of breaking and entering and larceny. The first count was for theft of $40 from the home of Rev. John Smith Lowe and Donald Hilt both of which were petty larceny. The third count was for the theft from the home of Michael Ristano and, being over $100, $137, in fact was brought as grand larceny.

His arrest came as the result of investigation by Patrolmen Carl Christofferson and Frank Bridges of the city police who, using a description given by Mrs. Ristano who saw him for but a moment and the testimony of a local girl, who had been the companion of a man answering that description, caused him to be apprehended by Portland police on Saturday morning.

Judge Dwinall sentenced him to three months in the county jail on the Lowe and Hilt cases the sentences to run concurrently. The Ristano case, being grand larceny, has to be handled by superior court to which he was bound over for the February term in $500 bail.

His arrest and conviction should end the wave of house thefts that has been going on for the past 10 days and home owners who were jittery over the prospects of having their homes burglarized if they left them, may now rest easier.

The first break was made in the home of Rev. Dr. John Smith Lowe on Orient street some time between 4.45 and 5.15 last Monday afternoon. Here, a pocketbook containing $40 in ten-dollar bills was taken. Hachey stated in confession, which was obtained by Patrolmen Christofferson and Bridges, that he had rapped on the door and when no one answered, he entered the house and went to the dining room where he found the pocketbook. Leaving the house, he went to Park street place where he opened the wallet and took out the money, throwing the pocketbook away.

The Black Cat

(By The Roving Reporter)

There is food for thought in the following paragraph which recently appeared in the Lincoln County News:

"A woman, who is extension agent for a well-known charitable institution for children said to us, 'What is the matter with the women today? Are they completely carried away by the dramatic appeal for aid to British and refugee children? I think both projects very worthwhile but when we solicit for the needy and crippled children in our own State we constantly meet the reply: 'I cannot give anything this year. All my gifts must go to aid Britain and the refugee children.' This is working a real hardship on our own deserving institutions and becomes a great obstacle to the furthering of work to which these same women have always contributed."

Readers' Digest: "A county sheriff in Maine was suspected of undue leniency toward his prisoners in the county jail, but definite proof was lacking. Then one Summer evening a fellow townsman passed the jail and noticed six or seven of the inmates, neatly dressed, coming out of the jail. In the doorway stood the sheriff, watching their departure. The curious citizen stepped behind a tree and heard the sheriff say to the prisoners, 'Now you fellows be back here by 9.30, or, by G—, you'll be locked out!'"

"Do you ever have a call for black cats?" writes a Union correspondent, who adds that Mrs. Leo Ross of that town has three kittens which are all black.

Maine's 31 local draft boards will be inactive today (Armistice Day). Now if I only had the gift of prophecy to say when they will be closed permanently.

Mrs. Emma Davis of Coggins Hill Union, died Nov. 5 on a mess of nice dandelion greens, extracted from the frostbitten soil that day.

A popham Beach woman who patronizes The Courier-Gazette's classified advertisement column sends us this welcome word: "I want to tell you that my ads in your paper have always been successful; also from those I have employed and the others I have interviewed I have gotten a strong impression of what a nice type of girl comes from Rockland, Thomaston and vicinity."

The Elks will have degree work Armistice night, together with a roast beef supper (not a baked bean supper, as the compositor recently made it appear).

Prud Bowdoin, once flaunting before the world an unbeatable champion night.

Hachey admitted the breaks which totaled $179, but could show but $1.20 of it at the time of arrest. He claimed he spent Friday evening in Portland with friends and paid for the evening's entertainment which came to $72 and could not account for the remainder of the money.

Portland, police records showed that he had had a previous record. According to his story, he left Rockland on the 10.55 a. m. bus for pionship football team, was crowded into the cellar at Orono Saturday when its third straight defeat was visited upon it by the revived Maine outfit. Bowdoin did not surrender without a plucky struggle, however, and was within six inches of the touchdown which would possibly have turned defeat into victory. The older Rockland fans who sat in the stands recall the contrast presented by the fine fall day with the storm tossed gridiron which has quite frequently presented itself for the Maine-Bowdoin game.

Motorists from Rockland to Bangor are giving Searsport the cold shoulder these days, all because of the detour made necessary by the new construction. Within a few years the Atlantic Trail from Bath to Bangor is going to be a very fine stretch of highway.

I'm afraid old Buddy who used to hang around the Harbor but now lives the life of Riley at Bray's store is still plain and unpretentious and always will remain so. Young Elmer thought he'd doll the dog up a little the other day, so with sister's nail paint and brush he gave Buddy's nails a beautiful coat of brilliant enamel. Buddy watched the process soberly and when all was done he surveyed the finished results. Then deliberately he folded the offending paws beneath his chest, laid his head down, the more thoroughly to cover them, and looked reproachfully at Elmer, as much as to say, "Well, you've had your fun but I don't have to stay on exhibition!"—Deer Isle Messenger.

Farmer E. E. Reese of Cloverdale, Oregon, examined a pig's appendix and predicted a hard winter. Whereupon his neighbors began preparing against deep snow and bitter cold. They say he can read the severity of a winter in a pig's appendix with unsavory accuracy. Reese said he stumbled onto the secret—which he isn't revealing—while butchering several years ago.

A farmer, who is a resident of the Broad Cove section in Bremen, is in the market for a cow, right off. Saturday afternoon he called to "Bossy," as was his usual custom, expecting to have her appear, as usual at the barn door for evening milk and lunch. No "Bossy" appeared and he called again and finally a search was instituted in the pasture. In a short time, she was found, some hunter didn't have his specs with him and he had shot the cow for a deer.

One year ago: Clifford Lodge at Warrenton Park was destroyed by fire—The fire trucks were called from the Armistice Day parade by a chimney fire at the residence of G. B. Butler in South Thomaston.

Thomaston Friday and later gave a truck driver $2 for carrying him to Portland.

The Alumni of Colby College will hold a dinner at "Green Gables" in Camden Wednesday night at 6.30. President Franklin Johnson will be the speaker.

IN FLANDERS FIELDS
In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.
Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

Penobscot View Grange of Glen Cove is showing progress with interesting programs and an increase in membership. The third and fourth degrees were conferred Oct. 30 on five candidates; and Nov. 6, the first and second on 10 candidates. Seven applications have been received.

Limerock Valley Pomona Grange attended morning service at the Rockport Baptist Church in observance of Grange Day or Harvest Sunday, with more than 40 members present. Special music was furnished by the adult and children's choirs, with Church organist Clara Lane as accompanist for the former and Mrs. C. V. Overman, pianist for the latter. A vocal duet was sung by Mrs. Lina Joyce and Charles Marston. Grange Chaplain, Mrs. F. L. S. Morse, read the Scripture. Rev. C. V. Overman used as his sermon-subject "The Mercies of God." Dividing needs into three classes, temporal, intellectual and spiritual, he showed how, through the mercies of God, they were met. The sermon was especially appropriate for the occasion.

IT IS NOT THE TEAR AT THIS MOMENT SHED

It is not the tear at this moment shed. When the cold turf has just been laid o'er him. That can tell how beloved was the friend that's dead. Or how deep in our hearts we deplore him. 'Tis the tear, thro' many a long day wept, Through a life, by his loss all shaded. 'Tis the sad remembrance, fondly kept, When all lighter griefs have faded! Oh! thus shall we mourn!—and his memory's light, While it shines through our hearts, will improve them. For worth shall look fairer, and truth more bright. When we think how he liv'd but to love them. And, as buried saints have shed perfume Through shrines where they've been lying. So our hearts shall borrow a sweetening bloom From the image he left there in dying!

Science In The News

By ORSON D. MUNN, Litt.B., LL.B., Sc.D.

Editor, Scientific American

Orson D. Munn

An authoritative article on the long search for the perfect anti-freeze solution for automobile radiators appears in The Journal of Chemical Education, which is under the sponsorship of the American Chemical Society. The authors of the article report on original research carried on by the National Carbon Company, Inc., at Tonawanda, N. Y., where the largest anti-freeze development laboratory in the world is maintained. Prevention of freezing at prevailing winter temperatures is only the first step in perfecting an anti-freeze preparation. Plain ethylene glycol mixed with water, for instance, will leak out of a cooling system more readily than will straight water. So an anti-freeze to be "permanent" must be treated to prevent its loss through leakage from minute openings in the cooling system. Experiments show that "Prestone" anti-freeze, which has an ethylene glycol base, has a leakage rate only 30% to 50% that of water.

Water will corrode metal parts, particularly when it is heated and when air is forced into it, two things which occur in an automobile's cooling system. Therefore, it is most important that the anti-freeze contain "inhibitors" against rust and corrosion, as well as against the foaming which comes from the use of untreated ethylene glycol. Furthermore, since vital parts of the cooling system are made of rubber, the solution must not attack this substance. Experiments with "permanent" anti-freeze as now developed show conquest not only of the rust and corrosion and foaming problems, but of the danger to rubber as well. Hose failures have been found to be more frequent with plain water than with the properly treated ethylene glycol anti-freeze solution.

One finding of significance to car owners is that the difficult test for their cooling systems' comes after the engine has been stopped. Heat immediately rises then, and the threat of "after boil" is present. This is one of the most common causes of loss of alcohol types of anti-freeze solutions. Occurring without the knowledge of the car owner, it sets the stage for an overheated radiator after the solution level drops to the danger point. The only protection against "after boil" is a type of anti-freeze with a very high boiling point, so that the periods of excessive heat can be resisted by the solution in the cooling system.

Constant laboratory research on this subject is necessary, to match developments in automobile engines. One reward of past work apparent today is that the tanks, planes and mosquito boats used in national defense are readily supplied with that most vital need—an efficient anti-freeze solution.

RIGHT SHALL PREVAIL

(For The Courier-Gazette)

In Arlington the unknown soldier lies
At rest within his quiet tomb alone.
And far from tragedy's war battered fields;
His sculptured crypt a eulogy of stone
For those who held Democracy aloft.
Though precious life itself became the price,
To us they left the torch of Freedom's light
Yet fate decrees that sacrifice be twice.
For despots once again despoil their prey
And challenge those who would defend the weak.
The war god's greedy hands run red with blood
And countryside lie desolate and bleak.
"Right shall prevail!" we hear a voiceless cry
Where rows of crosses mark the hallowed graves,
"Right shall prevail!" in echo from the sea;
There martyred sailors sank beneath the waves.
"Right shall prevail," our lips take up the cry,
And slavery abolished from the lands
As Freedom liberates a tired world.
The sword replaced by plowshare in the hands.
But in these darkening days, from mother hearts
Goes forth to God an agonizing plea,
That when a final Armistice is signed
Wars will be done, for all eternity!

CLOSED WITH EASY WIN

Rockland High Beats Crosby 27 To 0—Seniors Made Good Record

Rockland High closes its football season with a smashing win over Crosby High in Belfast Saturday, taking the latter's light, unorganized team to the tune of 27-0.

The first quarter saw Rockland score twice and garner an extra point. Hartwell Dowling did the ball carrying to first cross Crosby's goal and start the parade which saw the Orange and Black score four times, playing in a sea of mud and overcoming the handicap of slippery going. John Storer rang up the second score shortly afterward, and Joe Page rushed the line for the point after.

The second quarter developed into a punting duel with both teams bogged down with mud. The last of the quarter Jimmie Stevens sent in the subs who drove the ball down to the 15-yard marker and were on the way to a touchdown when the whistle blew for the end of the half.

Coming back for the opening of the second quarter, with a few extra pounds of mud scraped off, Rockland proceeded to score within two minutes, with Bert Snow doing the honors and Page obliging with a rush that rang up the point after and brought the score to 29-0 in Rockland's favor.

Belfast had a chance to score in the next few minutes when it started a march that was clicking along right smartly, but, as has been its habit all season, Rockland stiffened and took the ball when its goal was threatened. From then on, things happened too fast for the up-river boys. Rockland started a run, lateraled and was off to the races going to the 10-yard marker before being stopped. Two drives and the fourth score was tallied by Ames, an end who had pulled back for the job. Page again hit the Belfast line for the extra point that made the total of 27.

The second team then took over and played Crosby right out its pants, pushing Belfast around the field at will and only failing to score by the proverbial whisker.

Every Senior on the team scored this year, the Belfast game being used to complete the list. Bert Snow who is ordinarily a tackle, was pulled back to make the third score and Ames was taken from end to do the same job on the fourth and final tally.

There were as many Rockland rooters at the game as there were Belfast backers and the RHS Band was on hand to furnish music for the victory.

Coach Jimmie Stevens and his players are deserving of a lot of credit, they have come a long way in the last few weeks, having played the best teams in the State and winning a good percentage of their games. An excellent foundation has been laid for a fast team next year, one that should surpass this season's record.

DISMANTLING THE GAS KILNS

—By Staff Photographer

The huge battery of gas burning kilns of the Rockland & Rockport Lime Company at the foot of Camden street, which are now being dismantled. Some will be remodeled for other purposes in the company's business.

Supt. Knott C. Rankin of the Rockland and Rockport Lime Company announced this morning that the demolition of the battery of gas kilns at the North End had been started. The entire structure will not be taken down, as three, or possibly four, of the kilns will be remodeled as storage tanks for pulverized limestone or other products of the company. However, the days of lime burning in these kilns is definitely past, according to Mr. Rankin.

Built shortly after the World War at a cost said to be close to $1,000,000, they were used for several years, until the decline of business forced their discontinuance and the return to the old wood burning kilns was made.

The work of taking them down is being done, at the present, by company crews. No sale of them to any firm for junk purposes has been made as yet.

The largest industrial structure in the city, their removal will make a decided change in the city's skyline, together with the impending discontinuance of the Lime Rock Railroad.

Rockland is about to lose two of its landmarks due to the inroads of competition and substitutes for lime in the building industry.

However, the steadily growing business in agricultural lime and fluxstone may supplant the once thriving manufacture of building lime.

Friendship. Mrs. Oliver inspected the temple and gave constructive remarks. A goodly number attended, including several Knights. A small gift was presented Mrs. Oliver in appreciation of her kindness.

HAPPY LAUNCHING FEATURE

Top, the A M C 108, U.S.S. Valor as she hit the water at the Saturday afternoon launching. She was towed to the fitting out dock and will be made ready for duty in a short time.

The two little ladies who jointly christened the U.S.S. Valor at Snow Shipyard, Inc. They are twins, Jane and Noreen Brannan, aged seven, and granddaughters of a naval veteran of 38 years' service. Not in the least awed by the spectators, uniforms of officers and ceremony, they christened the craft in a manner befitting children of the service.

The A M C 108, U.S.S. Valor, Lieutenant, junior grade, who has been drawn from the Naval Reserve and has been following the sea for years in merchant vessels either as a captain or navigating officer. The second in command, likewise, comes from the merchant service via the reserve, and is a seasoned seaman, or may have been a recent graduate of the naval officers' training schools, which draw their cadets from among graduates of the nation's colleges, and carries the grade of Ensign. The engineering officer is a graduate in engineering from some technical college and has been given special training in diesel engineering, he is also an Ensign.

These craft are commanded by young officers and manned by experienced highly trained crews. The commanding officer is generally a

Esten W. Porter

Death of Former Rockland Man, Who Was President of New York Concern

Esten W. Porter, president of the Premium Service Company of New York, died last Friday. Mr. Porter was born in Rockland June 30, 1866. He was schooled in this city and his first position was with the Bodwell Granite Company. He was very active in social, church and political circles in Rockland until 1902 when he moved to New York to enter the advertising business, and his interest in Rockland affairs was always kept alive through frequent contacts. His first business association in New York was with his brother in the John Newton Porter Company, and he later organized his own company under the name of the Premium Service Company, Inc. He served as president of this company until his death.

Mr. Porter was one of the organizers and leaders of the Premium Advertising Association of America, having been vice president of the organization since 1931, and was recognized as one of the foremost authorities of premium advertising in the country.

He was active in several organizations in New York, including the Masons, State of Maine Society and others. His favorite recreation was tennis, and until quite recently was an active participant in the tournaments of the club.

During his residence in Rockland he was particularly active in the Young Men's Christian Association, which then had a flourishing branch in this city; and in the affairs of the First Baptist Church. He served several terms in the Rockland City Government and was the originator of a number of measures important to the city's welfare.

With the circle of his friends rapidly dwindling through death and removal to other fields, Mr. Porter nevertheless embraced every opportunity to revisit the scenes of his younger days, assured always of a most cordial welcome. He was a frequent contributor to the columns of The Courier-Gazette, as well as the New York newspapers, and his views on all subjects, local or national, carried much weight. Business called him to remote places, and in recent years he was a regular patron of the air-lines, greatly preferring that method of transportation. The death of his son, William, a few years ago was a very great blow to him. Mr. Porter lived beyond the allotted span, highly esteemed and universally liked.

Mr. Porter is survived by his wife, Mabel (Orbeton); a daughter, Mabel Anne French of Camden, daughter-in-law, Phyllis R. Porter of Forest Hills, N. Y.; and three grandchildren, Frances, William and Donald Porter.

Funeral services were to be held in New York Monday night in the Universalist chapel, 52d Street and Lexington avenue. There will also be brief services at the Davis funeral home in Thomaston Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, with interment in Achorn cemetery, Rockland.

Deputy Sheriff Granville Batchelder of St. George brought two Walham, Mass., boys, ages 11 and 13, before Municipal Court Monday morning on charges of having broken into a cottage in Tenant's Harbor and stolen a rifle and shells for the same. Upon being questioned the boys revealed that they had run away from home. Mr. Batchelder stated that this case was the second time that they had run away and come to St. George. The fathers were notified and were on their way here for the boys at press time.

Parker Jackson of South Thomaston is on a hunting trip in the northern part of the State.

The Public Library will be closed all day in observance of Armistice Day.

THE RED CROSS CAMPAIGN

Citywide Canvass Will Take Place Next Week
—The List of Workers

To urge the citizens of Rockland, keenly conscious as each must be of the existing world-wide emergency, to respond to this call for Red Cross funds seems entirely unnecessary. Yet the committee urges every individual to help make this drive a success by contributing something, be the amount large or small, toward the quota.

To make doubly sure that everyone has an opportunity to do his bit, receiving headquarters will be maintained at the Central Maine store from 1 o'clock to 2.45 every week day during the campaign, Nov. 12-15. Give at home, give at your place of business, or at the receiving headquarters, but give!

The names (only) of every contributor, unless he requests the contrary, will be listed at the Post Office. Have your name among the first!

Mrs. Danforth Adams, chairman of the roll call drive for Red Cross membership, announces the list of women who will undertake the house to house canvass of Rockland's residential district.

Ward 1—Mrs. Arnold Nelson, captain; Mrs. Frank Hallowell, Mrs. Sherman Lord, Mrs. Everett Fernald, Mrs. Amelia Kinney.

Ward 2—Mrs. Willis Anderson, captain; Miss Caroline Jameson, Miss Edith Bicknell, Mrs. Ethel Colburn, Mrs. Harold Greene, Mrs. Frank Maxcy, Mrs. Ruth Albee, Mrs. Harold Leach, Mrs. Charles Lake, Mrs. R. E. Philbrick, Mrs. Knott Rankin.

A Fine Record

Tax Collector Nelson Ahead Of Last Year's Mark—Arrears Only To 1931

Just how busy a place is the tax collector's office may be seen from these notes picked up at Carl O. Nelson's desk. To date $370,696.37 has been collected for 1941 as against $325,715.01 for 1940. That makes a total reduction of the 1941 commitment of $366,392.44 as compared with $326,597.71 for 1940. Of the 1941 gross only $142,822.54 remains to be collected while the 1940 balance is $182,770.27.

In 1938 there were outstanding taxes back to 1922. At the present time arrears only run to 1931. In addition to this record of hard work and achievement, Collector Nelson has extended many courtesies to motor car owners in handling at his office the many annoying details of excise tax regulations on applications.

TWENTY-TWO MILES PER GALLON

John S. Luke of Dyer's Garage, and Mrs. Kathleen S. Fuller, president of The Courier-Gazette, Inc., and Associate Editor, who accompanied him on the 109 mile test run to Clinton Friday as observer in the new 1942 Dodge which averaged 22 miles per gallon at an average speed of 45 miles per hour over slippery highways.

Twenty-two miles to the gallon of gasoline is a good economy record, in the opinion of John S. Luke, manager of Dyer's Garage Inc.

"It is an especially excellent showing," says Mr. Luke, "when you consider that Dodge is powered with a new 105 horsepower engine. That's a lot of power and a lot of mileage to come from so little gasoline."

Back of Mr. Luke's terse statement lies a story appealing impartially to the all-important cause of gasoline conservation and to the motorist's personal and individual pocketbook. The story, as related by Mr. Luke, is that Dodge engineers in developing their new 105 horsepower engine, succeeded in combining power, smoothness and flexibility with unusual economy.

When many tests and trial runs yielded uniformly impressive economy data, the Company's sales head organized Dodge dealers for a great nationwide demonstration of the newest Dodge Fluid-Drive model in a 100-mile economy test carried on simultaneously in all parts of the country, over all sorts of roads and under greatly varying driving and traffic conditions. The idea was that if the results of these runs, as reported to the factory, gave the expected noteworthy picture of outstanding fuel economy, the world was entitled to learn about it.

"Our own contribution to the nationwide demonstration consisted of a 109-mile trip to Clinton," Mr. Luke explained. "Starting with the gasoline tank filled to capacity, the speedometer reading was noted to be 1662 miles. When the speedometer reading had reached 1771 miles, a stop was made. It required exactly 4 8-10 gallons of fuel to refill the tank to its origin level. That meant that each gallon of gasoline had given us 22 miles of travel—extraordinarily smooth travel, because the car, you must remember was an All-Fluid Drive model."

"To make the record authentic, we enlisted the co-operation of Mrs. Kathleen S. Fuller, president of The Courier-Gazette Corporation as official observer. Mrs. Fuller personally checked the mileage and gasoline consumption and certified his observations in a signed statement made before a notary public.

Baptist News Notes

Dr. Barnes To Address Bible Conference Tuesday Night—Brotherhood Class

Carl F. Ashe, field representative of Wheaton College, Wheaton, Illinois, was heard at the First Church Sunday morning preceding the sermon by the pastor.

Rev. Maurice Dunbar of South Thomaston offered prayer the Sunday before, as did Mr. Ashe last Sunday. The large choir has been appreciated recent Sundays. Miss Luella G. Patterson, the choir director and organist, now gives a ten-minute organ recital before each evening service.

A short prayer service in the vestry will precede the monthly Union Bible Conference commencing in the auditorium at 7.30 Tuesday night, when the speaker will be Dr. Irving P. Barnes of Somerville, Mass., National Leader of Advent Christian Denomination. A Christian flag has recently been presented to the Church, made possible by the gift of Maynard Condon, so that the Stars and Stripes on the one side and the Christian flag on the other now grace the pulpit platform.

The singing at the Brotherhood Bible Class Sunday was with trombone accompaniment by Florian Clark, with Mrs. Raymond Pendleton at the piano during the regular absence of the regular pianist, Albert Adams. "Uncle John" Kellenberger, 90, is a regular attendant at the Class; and now Dennis O. Stahl comes along with his 85th birthday, also attending regularly when in town. It is wondered if any other Bible class in the vicinity has a regular attendant 90 years of age.

B. E. St. Clair was welcomed back to membership upon his return to Rockland from Bath. Recent visitors have been Milton T. Lufkin of Caribou, Captain Lloyd Billings of Rockland, and Carl F. Ashe of Wheaton, Illinois.

Troop 202, Boy Scouts, will leave for an all day hike at 8 o'clock tomorrow from the Methodist Church, returning at dark. Signal flags are required.

The Marine Corps will open a recruiting office every Monday at the Post Office for any man between the ages of 17 and 30.

The MacDonald Class will meet tonight with Mrs. Raymond Pendleton, Ingraham Hill.

Arts And Training

Supt. A. D. Gray of Waldo-boro Explains Differences and Relationships

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Among the public there is a certain amount of confusion of meaning between industrial arts and vocational training.

A simple distinction would be that "industrial arts" is training, in the grades, for general skill with the hands. It helps greatly to form the foundation for training for the special vocations in High School, later on.

Vocational education consists of special courses offered in High School to mature students who, for the most part, expect to earn their living in that particular occupation, after they graduate.

Courses in the industrial arts are subsidized by the State, only. Those in Vocational Training are subsidized by the Federal Government, also.

As yet, Waldo-boro has no courses in the industrial arts. It has one course in vocational education. That is vocational agriculture. It has also a special course in commercial work, which is, in part, vocational.

What are the needs of pupils in the public schools?

Education of the mind and education of the hands need to go along together. The industrial arts should begin even in the first grade, with drawing, coloring and paper cutting, to correlate with reading, writing and arithmetic.

This should expand, as the child goes through the grades with the offering of manual training, home economics and other courses in the practical skills, until he reaches the level of vocational training in special occupations, in High School.

A. D. Gray, Superintendent of Schools.

Waldo-boro, Nov. 8.

Some plants in Japan have discontinued night shifts because of shortage of materials and labor, the Department of Commerce reports.

World demand for strategic minerals has led to intensive prospecting in Argentina, according to the department of commerce.

Last May, there were but 133 shipways available in this country; this year there are 322 and others under construction. Employment in shipyards is six times what it was before this country started building for defense.

DRAMA AT BATES COLLEGE

The Robinson Players, Bates College Dramatic Club, as part of their training in dramatics, learn something about scenery construction and stage settings as well as just acting. Shown here working on a set for the production of "Laburnum Grove," which was given Thursday and Friday of this week are, left to right: John Marsh '43, Portland; Dorothy Frost '42, Rockland; and George Kirwin '42, Lewiston. Miss Frost has a leading role in the play.

Thursday night's production was "Laburnum Grove," a three-act comedy by J. B. Priestly, which was very well presented by a clever cast. It proved to be an intriguing play, in its own quiet way, so that the audience was kept in doubt as to the outcome right up to the final curtain.

The principals were George Radfern, his wife and daughter; the wife's sister and her husband, a fine pair of parasites who have been sponging on the Radferns, off and on, for some time; and the daughter's boy friend.

The Lewiston Sun says that Dorothy Frost of Rockland gave a very skillful characterization of the wife of the boastful brother-in-law. Among those present were Miss Frost's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bird; her mother, Nettie Bird Frost; and Miss Harriet Bird.

ORFF-OVERLOCK

Miss Jeannette Overlock, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Overlock of Warren, became the bride of Kendall A. Orff of Cushing, Wednesday night at a quiet wedding held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Orff, the groom's parents in Cushing. The ceremony took place in the living room which was decorated with twisted pink and white crepe paper streamers. Rev. J. Charles MacDonald used the double ring ceremony. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Whitehill of Thomaston, uncle and aunt of the bride.

The bride wore long white figured taffeta, her long veil of net caught coronet style with orange blossoms, dainty taffeta bows with lilies of the valley fastened to the hem. Her cascade bouquet was of white carnations. The accessories were white.

Mrs. Whitehill, matron of honor, was dressed in a floor length gown of aqua taffeta, with gathered skirt, tied with bronze ribbon, and her arm bouquet was of bronze chrysanthemums and yellow carnations mixed. Her accessories were in white.

Mrs. Charles Overlock, mother of the bride, had charge of the guest book. Mr. and Mrs. Orff left on a short motor trip, and on their return will make their home for a time with Mr. and Mrs. Orff. Mrs. Orff's going away outfit consisted of a navy blue crepe dress with white collar and cuffs, and touches of yoke, topped with a tweed coat.

Mrs. Orff graduated from Warren High School in June. She is a member of Goodwill Grange of South Warren and the Warren Baptist Church.

Kendall Orff is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Orff of Cushing. He graduated from Thomaston High School and is a poultry specialist.

Guests at the simple wedding included only the immediate families, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Overlock, Mrs. Isa Teague, Maurice Watts of Warren; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Studley of Glen Cove; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Orff, Mrs. Hattie Orff, and Willis J. Orff of Cushing.

Alice Sideinger Harris.

Funeral services will be held at the Waltz Funeral Home Tuesday at 2 o'clock. Rev. Harold Nutter officiating. Interment will be in the Comery Cemetery.

Luggage Space Galore

The new De Soto provides more than enough room in its big storage compartment for the average family's luggage. In all sedans, the spare wheel is mounted vertically at the side of the locker where it's out of the way, yet handy to get at when needed. Floor-level loading makes it easy to get luggage in and out of the compartment. The counterbalanced trunk lid goes up and down without effort, stays where it's wanted when raised above center. The taillights illuminate the luggage locker's interior at night. All joints are rubber-sealed against weather.

Supper Thursday at the Congregational Church will be served by, Mrs. Edna Overlock, Mrs. E. Belle Walker, Mrs. Flora Peabody, Mrs. Katie Starrett and Mrs. Gertrude Starrett.

Any man or woman wishing to enroll for civilian defense service may do so Thursday from 7 p. m. or with Mrs. Willis R. Vinal, chairman of the local women's division; Mrs. Dana H. Smith, Sr., chairman of registration; George Starrett town co-ordinator, and Mrs. Philip Simmons. It is not necessary to take any of the civilian courses to enroll for such service.

Members of the Poultry Protective Association are urged to attend an important meeting of that organization tonight at 7.30 at the White Oak Grange hall, North Warren.

Red Cross Activities

Capt. Keryn ap Rice of Rockland, chairman of the Knox County Red Cross, was speaker Saturday at a Red Cross benefit program held at Glover hall, auspices of the Union Farmers' Trading Club. Captain Rice pointed out the world work of the organization in disaster, as well as the service rendered locally by the Red Cross. He told of the Civilian Defense set-up; that John Pomeroy, engineer at the Lawrence Portland cement plant is the chairman of the disaster committee of Knox County; that under the supervision of Miss Ellen C. Daly, superintendent of Knox Hospital, between 20 and 40 volunteer nurses' aides will receive 150 hours of free instruction.

He spoke of the service given in sewing by women of the county, and of the classes in first aid so efficiently taught by volunteers, mentioning especially Chief Allen Payson of the Camden Fire Department. Captain Rice also sang a group of songs, "Dearest Maiden" by Haydn, "I Attempt From Love's Sickness To Fly" by Purcell, "Death and the Maiden" by Schubert, "Nature's Hymn" by Beethoven, and "The Mighty Deep" by Jude. His accompanist was Mrs. Abbie Folland of Rockland.

Rev. Alex Raitta of Friendship, in Finnish, told of the work of the Red Cross, comparing the organization with the good Samaritan, saying that it works among enemies as well as friends to alleviate the suffering in times of disaster and wars. Frank Silonen of North Warren, also was a speaker, and Charles Kigel of North Warren acted as master of ceremonies.

Supplementing the speeches on Red Cross work were several reels of pictures of workers in action, the machine operated by Robert Andrews of Thomaston.

Other program numbers included a group of three songs by Mrs. Nestor Salomaki of North Warren, one in English and two in Finnish, the first one accompanied by Mrs. Roland Berry. Mrs. Kaarlo Nurmi of Waldo-boro gave a recitation, "Autumn."

Coffee and coffee cake donated by the Finnish women were sold after the program, the proceeds to benefit the Red Cross, and Mrs. Martha Ojala of Rockville and Frank Silonen of North Warren received a goodly number of membership fees and donations. Music for the dancing which followed, was furnished by the Georges River Boys of St. George.

The active rehabilitation program of American railroads has returned many freight cars to service, the department of commerce reported.

How to cut the cost of Heating Your Home

BY John Barclay
AMERICA'S HOME HEATING EXPERT

How To Obtain Heating Satisfaction

ANOTHER heating season will soon be upon us. When tending to the furnace, let us resolve not to follow those habits which waste money, coal, and cause inconvenience and discomfort.

There are ten such bad habits which every homeowner would do well to avoid:

1. Excessive shaking of the grates: A gentle shaking will serve the same purpose and save fuel. Shake only until the first red glow appears in the ashpit, not until live pieces of coal drop through the grate.
2. Using ashes for banking purposes: The only place for ashes is in the ashpit—with the exception of a thin layer upon the grates. If you fire ashes on top of live coals, you can expect clinkers trouble and poor heat.
3. Burning rubbish or garbage in your furnace: Your furnace was built to burn coal, and you shouldn't put any foreign substance in it, as clinkers often result and fuel is wasted as a consequence.
4. Operating dirty boiler, heater, flue pipe or chimney: A clean heating plant—like a clean automobile engine—will give better service and greater comfort. Remove all soot and fly ash at least once a year.
5. Connecting two heaters into same chimney flue: This practice retards the draft and causes poor heat. If two heaters are connected into the same flue, make sure the draft on the one not being operated is completely shut off and all leaks sealed.
6. Operating hot air furnace without water in the humidifier: Dry air is both uncomfortable and unhealthy. You will get much more satisfaction from your furnace if the humidifier pan is kept filled with water. This is an important health measure.
7. Carrying thin fire bed: The firebox should be filled flush with the lower edge of the fire door. Contrary to the belief held by many people that a half filled firebox saves coal, it actually burns up more coal and at the same time causes much unnecessary inconvenience. A thick fire bed burns better, lasts longer and saves money.

8. Operating your furnace with damper controls disconnected: Strange as it may seem, some people do not bother to keep their damper controls in good working order. These controls are as necessary to your furnace as brakes are to an automobile. They are simple to operate. If handled properly they will save much fuel and add greatly to the comfort of your home. Your fuel dealer can instruct you in the correct use of dampers.

9. Using incorrect sized coal: For best heating results always use the size coal best suited for your heater. Today coal is prepared in several sizes, one of which is sure to give you best results. If the coal is too small it packs too much in the fuel bed. When this takes place it is sometimes difficult to bring up heat quickly. Other troubles may also be caused from a fuel bed that is "packed." Because of the blasting that is necessary it is sometimes very difficult to have the draft pass through this bed of coals. The heat may be retained to such an extent that there may be a possibility of clinkers forming. If the coal is too large in size the air will pass through it too quickly and actually rob heat from the fuel bed. Be sure the correct size of coal is being used.

The Public Library will be closed Tuesday, Armistice Day.

A business meeting of Union Church was held Friday, with Rev.

WITH INFRA-RED LIGHT

This picture was taken at the bi-monthly meeting of the Knox County Camera Club last Tuesday by The Courier-Gazette's staff photographer and was taken in total darkness with infra-red light. This is the second such picture to be taken in Maine using this process which came into use only a short time ago, the first being taken by the same photographer at Park Theatre one week ago. Only the infra-red rays of light are used and are invisible to the human eye, but act on a special infra-red film devised for this type of work. The rays strike beneath the skin and make a clean shaven man appear to have a day's growth of beard. The picture was taken during an auction of used photographic equipment, the lights being turned off for an instant while the infra-red exposure was made.

MONHEGAN

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wincapaw went to Rockland recently. They will visit their daughter Mrs. Dorothy Richardson.

Mrs. Leslie P. Davis left the island Thursday. She will reside in Portland this winter.

Mrs. Emma Field and Mrs. Helen Stevens have returned to the island after having visited Mrs. Stevens' relatives at White Head.

Mrs. Jane Whitley went to Port Clyde Tuesday, returning the same day. Mrs. Whitley enjoyed a two-in-one sail, as Capt. Earl Field's boat was towed to the island by a Burnt Island Coast Guard craft. However, Capt. Field soon had the necessary repair work completed.

H. P. Aldrich of Augusta, district superintendent presiding. The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. C. S. Mitchell, pastor. A short but helpful address was given by Rev. Mr. Aldrich, after which reports of the committees were read and acted upon.

George Healey is at home from Somerville, Mass., where he has been employed.

Ambrose Peterson Jr., who was home from Wentworth Institute, Boston, for the week-end had as guests Richard Welt of Arlington, Mass., and Burton Fraser of Somerville, Mass.

J. H. Roberts returned Saturday to Philadelphia after spending several months in town.

Miss Florice Shepherd of this town and Pvt. Robert P. Young of Fort Slocum, N. Y., were united in marriage Thursday at Union Church parsonage by Rev. Charles S. Mitchell, pastor. The bride is the daughter of William and the late Vera Shepherd. The groom, the son of Mrs. Lura Young, left Friday to return to Fort Slocum, Panama, having recently been where he expects to leave soon for transferred there.

and resumed his mail service Thursday. Hiram Colomy went to the mainland recently, also Louis Day. They returned the same day in company. Vernon Burton is on the mainland for a few days.

Harvey Cushman has returned to the island after visiting in Friendship. Mr. Cushman will be on the island this winter, having spent last winter in Friendship.

Alfred Stanley has been visiting relatives in Friendship. He recently bought Earl Field, Jr.'s lobster boat.

Mrs. Myra Orne and son William are in Rockland. Mrs. Orne and son Thomas who has been employed at the Stanley Garage for the past week, will visit Mr. and Mrs. Alan Kattelle in Hudson, Mass.

Much interest has been given to a sail picked up on Lobster Cove Beach by Misses Charlotte Stanley and Phyllis Chadwick. The sail was encased in a canvas bag, such as is used in life boats, and was the size used in this type boat. The canvas was held to the boom with lacing of hemp; the gaff was of stout bamboo and the rings made of rope firmly wired, with three wooden beads—at least they looked like overgrown beads—to protect the rope from wear on the mast. Beads and boom were hand hewn; all of the necessary stitches on sail and case were made by hand, and appeared to have seen much service. Another sea mystery.

When I climbed the stairs and entered the sail loft band room at first sight I found the following band members gathered there: Cornets, Calvert Bridges, Lem Joyce, Walter Joyce, Dr. Hawks, Emerson Sadler; trombone, Merton Staples; baritone, Frank Bridges; bass tuba, Will Freethy; alto, Blanche Tainter—and two more men whose names I can't recall to save my reputation for a good memory. Clarinet players were Deille Bridges, Seth Stockbridge, Charlie Rowe and Charlie Bucklin. Bass drum, Uncle Gene Rowe; snare drum, Eddie Robinson. I sincerely regret that some of the names have slipped my memory. Indeed, I am indebted to Charlie Bucklin for some names I couldn't recall.

I never forget a person, but having met thousands of people during my life I can't always remember the names of all of them. After the meeting was called to order we found that we had no music. I was never caught like that before and was stumped for a moment. I had no paper to write parts on and all I could do was start them on scales, tell them how to get the tones (the valves to use etc.) and drill them on chords. I had to tell them what keys to use on the different instruments to produce the tones in different chords, how to attack to produce the tones etc. I was surprised at the advancement they made. It proved to be a very profitable rehearsal even without any written music.

After that night we had plenty of music and soon were playing grade 2 music in fine style. As in the case of the North Haven band, I could not make regular trips but the boys improved just the same. They were a mighty fine bunch of fellows and soon did well enough to play in public.

They put on a really good entertainment one night and made quite a bunch of money. Uncle Gene Rowe, with his "fishbone story" was the star performer but the other members were not far behind. Several new instruments were purchased at a cost of several hundreds of dollars and the band was well on the road to success but, like many bands, the interest waned and another promising band went down for the 10 count. I have always regretted that my other work forced me to neglect the instruction they desired but could not get.

Only memories of the Swan's Island band remain today. If I ever get rich I am surely going to visit Swan's Island again. If any of the boys read this, to them I say, "Shake, for Auld Lang Syne."

The Memory Man

Takes Up Story of the Swan's Island Band, Via Bert Farnham

(By Free Member)

Once again Bert Farnham accedes to Free's request for a sketch. This time it is about the Swan's Island Band. I hope it will prove of interest and—thanks, Bert.

Friend Free Member: How can you expect me to recall everything that happened 35 or 50 years ago. You want some dope.

Many, many moons ago, I was called to Swan's Island to teach a band. I was surprised. I had played for many dances there but never heard that there was a band in town. Such was the fact, however. I believe that Roscoe (Admiral) Ingraham organized the band but was unable to continue with it and I took his place best I could.

In passing I wish to say that the Admiral organized more bands than any man in this section of Maine and he planted the idea of "playing in the band" in the heads of scores of persons who later became fine performers. Long may his memory live. A fine man who did a great work in local banddom.

When I saw the picture of Charlie Bucklin in a recent issue of The Courier-Gazette—the group picture of the Morse boatbuilding crew—it brought memories of scores of trips I made on the Old Vinal Haven when Charlie was the engineer. (By the way, the pictures shown in "Steamboat Days" are all being pasted in my special steamboat scrap book.) I remember practically all of the boats shown and they all sail on my "memory sea," and bring pleasure to me. Am I getting old? Pooh! I'm still less than 100!

The hall where the Swan's Island band met was on the second floor of an old sail loft. It was a rough setting, but very "homey," and we had some mighty good times rehearsing there. (I'd like to do it all over again.) Let it not be assumed that the only hall in Swan's Island is a sail loft; far from it. They boast a large and comfortable hall at the harbor and another hall, as large and comfortable, located about a mile out—on the road to Minto.

Why two fine large halls? Well, as I understand it the Red Men and the L.O.O.F. planned to build a hall together and use it for both orders. It happened that they couldn't agree on the location, which was perfectly all right and proper. They finally decided that it would be best for each order to build its own hall on a location satisfactory to each. This seems to have been the proper thing to do as each order has a fine hall, and both are a credit to the town.

When I climbed the stairs and entered the sail loft band room at first sight I found the following band members gathered there: Cornets, Calvert Bridges, Lem Joyce, Walter Joyce, Dr. Hawks, Emerson Sadler; trombone, Merton Staples; baritone, Frank Bridges; bass tuba, Will Freethy; alto, Blanche Tainter—and two more men whose names I can't recall to save my reputation for a good memory.

TALENTED ROCKLAND ARTIST

Meet "Ed" Witham, marine artist and lobsterman formerly a resident of Rockland and now living in Long Cove, where he tends the 120,000 pound lobster pound for Rackliff & Witham and paints in his spare time, working in a studio that sets a short ways apart from his home and in which he has done work which has brought him considerable recognition as a painter of marine scenes.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Witham of Lawrence street, he graduated from Rockland High School in 1928 and from the School of Practical Art in Boston in 1933. He started painting in his sophomore year in High School and it is only natural that he should turn to the sea for his subjects, coming from a family of seafarers and having spent his boyhood around the water and in the lobster business which his father, together with his partners, operates as the Rackliff & Witham Lobster Company on Atlantic Wharf.

Upon returning to Rockland from art school, he built a small studio near the family home on Lawrence street and worked at the painting when not busy in the lobster plant. In 1933, when Rackliff & Witham built the huge lobster pound at Long Cove, he took the active management of the plant which he has operated since that time.

Specializing in marine work, he has had several of his works reproduced by national lithograph houses for use in their sales programs for national advertising accounts. His paintings have been accepted for exhibition at the Ogunquit Art Center, Farnsworth Hotel, Boothbay Playhouse and Boothbay Art Exhibit.

His work has a style of its own, in which he obtains the color of the sea and ships such as only an artist brought up beside the sea can paint. The picture at the top shows him standing beside a painting in his studio. The center picture was taken as he worked at his daily labors of packing and shipping lobsters and is shown filling a tub with the shellfish. The lower picture shows him at work on a painting of a scene close to his home in Long Cove.

WEST ROCKPORT

Mt. Pleasant Grange served the annual banquet recently to the members of the Maine Blueberry harsal even without any written music.

After that night we had plenty of music and soon were playing grade 2 music in fine style. As in the case of the North Haven band, I could not make regular trips but the boys improved just the same. They were a mighty fine bunch of fellows and soon did well enough to play in public.

They put on a really good entertainment one night and made quite a bunch of money. Uncle Gene Rowe, with his "fishbone story" was the star performer but the other members were not far behind. Several new instruments were purchased at a cost of several hundreds of dollars and the band was well on the road to success but, like many bands, the interest waned and another promising band went down for the 10 count. I have always regretted that my other work forced me to neglect the instruction they desired but could not get.

Only memories of the Swan's Island band remain today. If I ever get rich I am surely going to visit Swan's Island again. If any of the boys read this, to them I say, "Shake, for Auld Lang Syne."

REALM OF MUSIC
by Gladys St. Clair Heistad

Do you remember I mentioned in this column some time ago that a new opera company was being organized, an all-American project, sponsored by Mrs. Lytle Hull? This company made its debut at the Forty-Fourth Street Theater in New York City on Oct. 14, presenting Mozart's "Così fan Tutte". Oscar Thompson in his review said: "It was a beginning heartening for those who are interested primarily in doing something to help young American singers, who, having prepared themselves for careers, come within the familiar category of those 'all dressed up and no place to go.' It was a beginning heartening also for those who long have protested that great opera houses like the Metropolitan are all wrong for the performance of works of an intimate character, with comedy plots that need to be understood in detail."

More than 800 American singers—young and some not so young—were heard in auditions. As only about 60 could be engaged as principals and understudies for the four productions (the other three are "Pique-Dame", "Macbeth" and "La Vie Parisienne") the need for other companies of similar character is evident. And it is the hope of Mrs. Hull that opera companies organized on the lines of her project will spring up all over the country.

I read several reviews of "Così fan Tutte", and all critics seem to agree on one point—the singing was acceptable but no important voices were disclosed. The hard work put into the preparation bore fruit in smooth and attractive singing in the concerted numbers which for some reason seem to fare better than the solos. But that is not amiss, as "Così fan Tutte" is primarily an ensemble opera.

An announcement of interest to Maine music circles is the retirement of Adelbert Wells Sprague as conductor of the Festival Chorus. In an open letter Mr. Sprague has set forth his reasons in a straightforward and open-minded way. He feels a rare opportunity for choral study and performance has opened up with the coming into this section of Maine of James Gordon Selwood, a master of the choral art. Now in the music department at University of Maine, Mr. Selwood has worked under outstanding choral conductors as performer, soloist and assistant conductor, and in his own name he has established a high reputation as a choral conductor, chiefly in New York City. His conductors at the World's Fair was notable for its artistry. Through years of activity, he has at his command the great choral repertoire that can enrich Bangor's musical heritage, quoting Mr. Sprague, who stresses that it would be regrettable for the community not to benefit by his musicianship. Mr. Selwood's duties are largely institutional, to be sure, yet his schedule will admit of a weekly rehearsal evening in Bangor.

With this step Mr. Sprague feels that the Festival Chorus can be enlarged to include more units from Eastern Maine, and will show renewed interest and a rejuvenated membership. He is eager for chorus units to be formed in many small towns and asks that he be notified at Symphony House of any such possibilities. Mr. Sprague during the years he has served so faithfully in directing the Festival chorus, has confined his efforts largely to the chorus-orchestra type—operas, oratorios, and cantatas, with orchestral accompaniment, which form a musical repertoire not to be neglected. However, he mentions the great a capella literature, almost untouched in the Festival chorus study and performance, and proposes an expansion of repertoire to include this and other choral literature not so familiar to singers, students, and public. Mr. Sprague himself will continue at the head of the Bangor Symphony Orchestra and in relinquishing the choral end, he will have greater opportunity to develop the orchestra along lines of which he has dreamed for many a year.

All of us who have sung in the Maine Music Festivals under the baton of the late William Rogers Chapman realize the enrichment of musical knowledge by singing in both small local chorus groups and in a large massed chorus, and it will be an inspiring step forward one to warm the heart of Mr. Sprague, if several small choral units spring up in Eastern Maine following the announcement concerning Mr. Selwood.

Emanuel Ondricek, renowned Boston violinist and teacher, (among his accomplished pupils is Miss Haskell of Warren) was a student in Prague under Antonin Dvorak's direct instruction, and with the Dvorak centennial celebration now in full swing, Mr. Ondricek recalls many interesting anecdotes about the famous composer. As a teacher, Mr. Ondricek says, Dvorak was one of the most irascible and at the same time one of the pleasantest of men. He was brusque with a pupil who could not grasp his meaning, and at the same time he showed all manner of patience and gave no end of encouragement. He was admirable at imparting theoretical knowledge, explaining matters of harmonic or orchestral technique in detail, but coming out with fiery and original remarks.

Mrs. Guy Gannett, president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, has been elected first vice-president of the National Music Council, to succeed Mrs. Vincent H.

Ober, former president of the Federation.

The Black Hills Passion Play is to be presented Nov. 11 to 14 in the Portland City Hall auditorium, sponsored by the Men's Club of the Williston Church. The play comes to Portland after 2,000 performances on this continent, being presented in Maine for the first time in the English language version. It was first presented in Europe in 1242 A. D. more than 400 years prior to the presentation to the more widely publicized Oberammergau production. Heading the cast is Josef Meier, seventh generation of his family to play the Christus.

Handel's Messiah is also to be given in Portland, on Sunday, Dec. 7, in the City Hall auditorium, under the sponsorship of the Portland Women's Chorus. John White Thomas will conduct and several assisting choral groups and selected soloists will join in the presentation.

A reply to the club's petition for the repeal of the Neutrality Act sent to Margaret Chase Smith at Washington, D. C. was read by Mrs. Eta Covel. James Cousins of Camden took for his subject "Present Day Investments." He brought out the point that when one buys any kind of stock they should keep in touch with the prices and sell at the right time to make a profit. An open forum followed. The next meeting will be at Mrs. Merrill's home Nov. 21.—by Mabel Harding, secretary.

The glass container industry is experiencing the most active year in its history, the Department of Commerce reported.

The Relief Corps "Pasts"

The annual meeting of the Past Presidents' Association of Edwin Libby Relief Corps was held Friday night at the home of Mrs. Clara Curtis, Brewster street. A picnic supper was held, followed by the meeting. Officers elected for the coming year are: Mrs. Winifred Butler, president; Mrs. Elizabeth Plummer, vice president; Mrs. Bessie Haraden, secretary; Mrs. Ida Huntley, treasurer. In the group above are, from left to right in the front row: Mrs. Adella Mullen, Mrs. Clara Curtis. Second row: Mrs. Hattie Davies, past State president; Mrs. Winifred Butler, Mrs. Rebekah Ingraham, aged 94, oldest member of the association; Mrs. Elizabeth Plummer, vice president; Mrs. Bessie Haraden, secretary; Mrs. Ida Huntley, treasurer.

RED CROSS AIDS ARMY MORALE

Red Cross workers are on the job in all Army and Navy camps and stations throughout the country to assist in the important task of maintaining morale. Above, an Army flier leaves unfinished personal matters for the Red Cross field director to take care of while he embarks on an emergency flight across country. The Red Cross is the official means of communication between service men and their families back home.

ROCKVILLE

Kenneth Thurston and Norman Thurston who have employment in Providence are here for the week enjoying the deer hunting privilege.

Le Roy Tolman is having a week's vacation from John Bird Co. and using his leisure, deer hunting.

Mrs. Arthur Turner and son Richard Arthur are spending a few days with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Vesper Hall.

Many hunters have been seen around here this week.

The School Fair

Rockville school held its annual fair Wednesday at the Rockville hall. The main floor was attractively decorated with streamers and on two long tables were fancy articles and candy and cooked food. At another table was soda also rolls and frankfurters.

Miss Josephine Tolman was in charge of the fancy articles and Misses Gladys and Mary Tolman presided over the candies and cooked foods. At the third table Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Hunter were kept busy filling requests for "hot dogs" and soda. The soda was given by E. Stewart Orbeton.

The school presented an interesting entertainment.

The net proceeds, $17.18, will be used for dental work for the pupils.

Participants in the program were: Janice Lomen, Nancy Post, Esther Hall, Marjorie Hunter, Lucille Quinn, Percie Fiske, Vestina Fiske, Edna Marshall, George Quinn, Ninon Ingersoll, Ralph Marshall, June Carroll, Mildred Marshall, and several numbers were given by pupils in unison.

TENANT'S HARBOR

MRS. E. L. TONER

Mrs. Eva L. Toner, wife of Supt. E. L. Toner formerly of Rockland, died suddenly at her home in Guilford, Saturday morning after a brief illness.

She was born in Greenfield, May 24, 1880, a daughter of John W. and Almada (White) Littlefield and when a young child moved with her parents to Orono. She was a teacher in the public schools of Orono and in the State of Maine for a period covering more than 25 years.

In 1907 she married Mr. Toner and they moved to Guilford some 15 months ago, when he assumed his present duties. She has always been active in the work of the Universalist Church and church school, and was a member of The Woman's Club of Guilford.

She is survived by the husband, also a son Charles Merrill Toner of Bangor, a brother, Ernest Littlefield of Orono, one grandchild.

MRS. ADDIE F. STROUT

Addie Florence Strout, 76, widow of Capt. Bion Strout passed on Oct. 27 at her home, 120 Camden street. She was born in Owl's Head, where she lived the greater part of her life. She was the daughter of Francis and Mary Dyer Maddocks.

Survivors are a daughter, Miss E. Burdell Strout of Rockland; a son, Riley F. Strout of Rockland; and a foster son Winston B. Pifield of Cambridge, Mass., to whom she gave a mother's love, who returned it with a son's devotion; five grandchildren, Mrs. Barbara Douglas of Rockland, Mrs. Gladys Evans of New York City, Kinsley Strout, student at Bangor Theological Seminary, Miss Vivian Strout and Sherwood Strout, both of Rockland; two great-grandchildren; two brothers, Manford D. and Fred E. Maddocks; and a sister, Miss Daisy Maddocks, all of Owl's Head.

Services were held at the residence on Camden street, Thursday, conducted by Harold Spear, First Reader of the Christian Science Church, and Dr. Guy Wilson of the Methodist Church. Bearers were Ivan Merriam, Lincoln Speed, Winfield Maddocks and Vinal Perry of Owl's Head, Almon P. Richardson and Earl Dow of Rockland. Burial in the Evergreen Cemetery, Owl's Head.

Although living quietly Mrs. Strout had many devoted friends who will miss the loyalty and friendship which she gave richly to them all. She lived with her daughter Miss Burdell Strout a very unusual and beautiful devotion uniting mother and daughter.

This And That

Noticing in recent years bits of lands for parks in several towns and cities in Maine, the last being Belfast where they already have one of the most beautiful parks on the coast, the wish comes to this writer that Rockland could have a fine park with trees and places for picnicking, seats for pleasure and resting. The delight residents take in the small space at the Public Landing emphasizes how greatly the spaces for pleasure and resting are appreciated.

On the Wrong Boat

The Hollywood scriptwriters are doing their best to adjust themselves to the crisis, but there are, inevitably, some loose ends. What a fine thing it would be and deeply appreciated if a top could be put onto the library walk and save possible bad falls. ## "Jerry's" Compliments

Letter From England Tells Of a Courageous People and Parious Times

The Courier-Gazette is indebted to Miss Annie W. Greenhalgh of 14 Grace street for the following interesting abstract of a letter she recently received from an English friend:

"Probably you are wondering how we are getting on. Well, up to the moment I am pleased to say that we are all well and keeping fit. We have had some rather trying and anxious times on various occasions, when Jerry has dropped his assortment of bombs far too near to be nice—all sizes, incendiary and otherwise, then the guns get busy, and what with the (censored) airplane humming or droning it gets a little noisy at times perhaps when one is just dropping off to sleep.

"We have no shelter, so stay indoors and make ourselves as comfortable as we can under the circumstances. There are of course the street surface shelters, provided by the authorities; also the tube railways, underground, but we do not use them.

"I have to go on fire watching duties all night, at my place of business, twice a week, and two neighbors, man and wife, come across and keep Ada company for the night. London is not what one might call a health resort at the present time, but still if you but could see how things are going on. The transport buses, passenger trains, lorries, etc., all carry on their merry way, and the people go about their normal duties in much the same way during the daytime, and the one great thing one feels and hears is the solid determination to stay put in spite of air raids; and the raids have been devilish, I give you my word. Hospitals, churches, chapels, private homes, burned by incendiary bombs and blown up by H. E. bombs.

"A great many persons have lost all they possessed. My son has left London and gone about 80 miles out, so that his son might be able to renew his education, and all get rested, as their home had been destroyed. He travels to the city each day—a trip of three-quarters of an hour.

"Kathleen, our daughter, has left London for a spell to rest. She and Ada were standing at the gate seeing me off from lunch, and I had boarded the bus when the siren sounded, guns commenced firing and almost immediately Jerry dropped H. E. bombs. Kath was blown right along the hall and knocked unconscious. Ada was blown against the walls and badly bruised. I did not know of this until I reached the office and found a telephone calling me back home. Since then Ada has been blown across the kitchenette when Jerry dropped an H. E. bomb not far away. She was badly shaken and could scarcely see for a day or two. She will not leave town and simply says, 'Where you are, Daddy, I'm staying, and hang Jerry and his bombs.'

"Kathleen's husband is a police officer and away from home so many different hours, he will not allow her to return to London.

"Kind regards to all those who have us so kindly in their thoughts. Cheerio—God bless you."

Mrs. Hugh A. Bain went to Boston by motor the last of the week. With her were her sister, Miss Adelaide Snow, and her niece, Mrs. John Snow Jr. Mrs. Bain will ship her car to California from Boston and go by rail herself.

Down In St. Pete

It's Unseasonably Warm There, Writes "G. H. R." Social Festivities Begin

St. Petersburg, Fla., Oct. 29

The sun is shining down here in St. Pete and it's unseasonably warm. Five thousand winter visitors have already registered at the Chamber of Commerce, and now that the threatened shortage of gasoline has abated, the city is preparing for the regular influx of tourists which last year topped the 70,000 mark.

The City Council has decreed that parallel parking is the proper thing, and most of the city streets are so marked. This edict is not at all popular among tourists who have already arrived, and find available parking space at a premium. A petition is already in circulation to restore the old system of angle parking and a referendum on the matter is being sought. According to the papers here, the matter of parking cars should not be considered of sufficient importance to warrant the expense of submitting the matter to a vote of the people, and so the matter stands.

Rockland Winter visitors, who intend driving down this year, may find the route which we followed less tiresome than others, for we avoided the traffic in most of the larger cities coming down, with the exception of Newark N. J. and Richmond, Va.

We came via Bear Mountain Bridge (route 202) through Montclair N. J. and down Broad street in Newark to the super highway south. Then route 130 to Pennsville Ferry. At Elkton, instead of going south on route 49 through Baltimore and Washington, we branched off and went to Mattapeak and across the ferry there to Annapolis. Leaving Annapolis we went directly south to the new Potomac River Bridge in Morgantown and on to Richmond. Beautiful roads, practically no traffic at all.

The cities we avoided were Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. Also we made faster time.

It's really too early to be down here now. It's too hot, both night and day. Vacant corner lots about town haven't been mowed yet and are high with weeds. The shuffleboard courts are only half lighted at night, the larger hotels are vacant and the green benches are practically deserted. The annual clean up in preparation for the forthcoming herd of Northerners is well underway however and another week or two will find the city all spic and span and with both hands out (palm up) to welcome its principal business.

Before Ray Stannard Baker died he asked Tom Dreier to carry on in his writings that spirit of contentment and keen enjoyment of the simple things in life which made the name "David Grayson" and his Adventures in Contentment famous throughout the literary world.

After a day spent at Tom's Florida home on Brightwaters Boulevard, Snell Island, I can understand the reasons which prompted the choice.

I didn't check on it, but for a guess, I should say that the thermometer at 9 a.m. this particular day, stood at 75 or thereabouts. It's warm enough for me to wear a sport shirt, a pair of these short elastic topped hose which Florida affects during the hot months, thin slacks and hurrache styled open work shoes, through which the morning breeze blew merrily. No one wears a hat or coat on such mornings down here, and neither did I.

With certain modifications, Mrs. Reed was similarly attired, and when we started out for our day's adventure we looked more like a middle aged couple starting out for a picnic in the woods, than two people on their way to a luncheon and dinner party in one of the more exclusive residential sections of St. Petersburg.

It was Tom's idea. "Come over in the morning", he had said, "wear anything, and put a clean shirt into a handbag to change into after our golf game. I'll probably be pretty hot around noon". I thought at the time that taking a hand bag along on a visit to a house which is only two miles or less from our own apartment was a mistake. Now that the visit is over I know it was a mistake—it should have been a trunk.

Anyway we arrived as per schedule, left the ladies on a wide porch overlooking a blue lagoon where the fish were playing leap frog under a smiling sun in a cloudless sky and played our game of golf on the nearby Sunset Golf Course. I played with Halsey Ford against Tom and a St. Petersburg lawyer named Noughton and I got my first taste of an adventure in contentment when our side won.

The sun sneaked upon us a bit during the 18 hole trek and when we finished I noted idly that I was the only member of our foursome still wearing a shirt.

We returned to the house, took a cold shower, changed into dry clean clothes, had a cocktail, a delicious

CAUGHT BY THE CAMERA

Not many miles from The Courier-Gazette office is to be found this well known Rockland citizen, day in and day out—57 years next March, to be exact. So regular in his habits that his many friends set their timepieces by his comings and goings. Has a very common name, by the way.

lunch on the wide porch overlooking the blue lagoon and then, quietly, comfortably and in total disregard of more conventional entertainment, we hunted up our respective bedrooms and took a nap.

Things like that make a hit with me. react favorably to such entertainment. It emphasized the subtle difference between visiting at the Dreiers' and visiting in less thoughtful homes.

Of course Tom can hardly be held responsible for three visitors who rang a cowbell just outside my open window. Not all his battery of safe deposit boxes, his $50,000 farm in New Hampshire, his Mediterranean type villa on Brightwaters Boulevard, can prevent that sort of accident, for beside all their affluence the Dreiers have a lot of friends, who insist on coming to see them once in a while.

They weren't my friends however, so let 'em ring. I wasn't supposed to know it was the maid's afternoon out. After a while they went away and I went back to sleep.

A bridge game had been arranged for 2:30 p.m. and I won the prize. That didn't lessen my contentment either.

At 6 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Allen neighbor from across the lagoon came in for cocktails and Sunday night supper. The Allens own an island in one of the Rangeley Lakes in Maine and talked about flying down to Panama to attend a wedding.

Everybody turned to and got supper and after dishes were washed and dried Tom brought out his projector and slides and we were entertained watching technicolor views of Bayside, Me. including the cottage we left two weeks ago because it had become so cold up there that the water company had been obliged to turn off the water for fear of bursting water pipes.

Sitting there in the warm Florida night with soft breezes blowing in from Tampa Bay through the open doors, calm rested and supremely contented I thought that Ray Stannard Baker had picked a good man to carry on. As far as I could see, Tom was justifying his heritage, not only in what he writes but in how he lives.

CABBAGE AND CAULIFLOWER

Latter Should Be Eaten Now While Plentiful and Cheap

Heavy supplies of cauliflower, now on the market from eastern producing centers, make this vegetable a good buy at this season of the year.

Cabbage, too, comes into its own at this season, but cabbage can be stored for many weeks. Cauliflower should be eaten now while it is plentiful and comparatively cheap, says Miss Kathryn Briwa, foods specialist in the Maine Extension Service.

Both cabbage and cauliflower are excellent sources of vitamin C, fair sources of vitamins B1 and G, and fair sources of calcium and iron.

Greatest nutritive value comes from eating cabbage and cauliflower raw in the various kinds of cole slaw and salads, Miss Briwa points out. In cooking these two vegetables, drop them into enough salted water to cover, then cook in an uncovered pan, until just tender.

Overcooking makes the food unattractive and destroys some food values. Cook cabbage 5 to 10 minutes; cauliflower 30 minutes in the solid head, or 10 to 15 minutes if separated into flowerets.

Uncle Sam's Boys

Send Home Word Of Their Doings While Under the Colors

Pl. Kamehameha, T. H. Oct. 19. Editor of The Courier-Gazette: "Aloha" from the Isles of Paradise and from the "Wanderlust Twins".

I have heard rumors that Summer is all over and that we have entered into the season of bright foliage and cold nights. Is there any truth in it? Just imagine if you can, mosquitoes and plenty of heat in the month of October. It sounds fantastic, but that is the way things are here. It is certainly pleasant to find it that way, too. Maybe I will get "fed up" on this heat before I get back to the lands of cold Winters and I might even relish the idea of shoveling snow.

By the time that this reaches The Courier-Gazette, Charlie Simpson and I will have completed six months on the Island of Oahu. It really has been a fast flying six months, but I sincerely hope that the next 18 glide away just as fast.

I hear that Vermont has passed a bill to pay their loyal sons in the service an extra $10 a month bonus. I have also heard rumors that Maine is proposing a similar bill. Here's hoping!

And while I am on the subject of politics, have you heard any news of the proposed "free-postage for service men" bill. That is something which would be greatly appreciated.

Lately, The Courier-Gazette and the general trend of letters have been bringing friend Charlie all kinds of bad news. Practically every issue of the paper breaks another little piece off his heart. Yes, it seems that all of his heart-throbs are entering the 49th State (matrimony).

"What have I done to deserve all this punishment", he asks. I have been thinking of writing to the Bureau of Missing Persons for information concerning the whereabouts of certain persons who have failed to answer my letters.

I have been following Chaplain Olds' letter with much enthusiasm and satisfaction, and have come to the conclusion that Hawaii isn't such a bad place after all.

We were out on a four-day maneuver last week, and what a time we did have. The work wasn't so bad, but the mosquitoes were. And to top all, the cook gave us lemonade, but through some manner a lizard had made its way into it. "Lizardade" didn't appeal to me.

The merchants of Honolulu have complained so much about the soldiers getting paid on the same day, that we have our pay-days staggered. Now, this Post gets its pay on the seventh.

Yesterday was Colonel's inspection so we spent the three previous days preparing for it. Don't tell Mother, but I was down on my hands and knees scrubbing the floor.

I am running across more and more Maine boys here every day. Wiscasset, Bath, Moncton, Lewiston, Portland and Old Orchard are all represented.

We received this little ditty in the mail:

Whether in Maine,
Or far off Spain,
Or Hawaii's sunny shores;
Just remember the name,
That has sure brought fame,
The Wander-Just Twins by George,
Stewart M. Pollard.

Maine's Masque Play

Four Rockland Students Had Important Part In "The Golden Apple"

Four persons from Rockland and vicinity, students at the University of Maine, have important roles in the first Maine Masque Theatre production, "The Golden Apple," which opened its four day run in the Little Theatre at Orono Monday night.

Katherine Rice of Rockland is cast in the leading role, while other characters include Richard Bloom of North Haven, Carol Richards of Rockport, and Malcolm Pietsen of Tenants Harbor.

Miss Rice, a newcomer to the University of Maine campus graduated in 1939 from Rockland High School where she was prominent in dramatics, receiving the honor of being considered the outstanding actress in the New England one-act play contest in 1938. She has come to the University of Maine as a Sophomore transfer from Emerson College, to which she was awarded a scholarship for 1940-41. She is a member of Phi Mu Gamma, national dramatic society.

As the leading lady and stenographer-sweetheart of Lewis Chadwick, reporter, Katherine Rice turned in an excellent performance which had all the charm and reality which makes an actress an actress, in the opening performance Monday night.

Bloom and Pietsen, acting as bell hops in a hotel scene, were part of a dance act which was colorful, while Richards was a street dancer in one of the finest scenes in the entire show.

What good will defense bonds do me?

You may need the money more than you do now. It will help you to educate the children. It may help to pay off the mortgage. It should get you into the habit of setting aside a little every pay-day, and putting it into a savings-bank
